Skilled Migration Visa

- Official Guide -

Overview of Skilled Migration Program

Australia's skilled migration program allows qualified individuals to live and work in Australia, contributing to the economy and filling skill shortages. It includes permanent, provisional, and temporary visas designed for skilled workers.

Who Can Apply?

- Nominate an occupation on a relevant Skilled Occupation List (e.g., CSOL, MLTSSL, STSOL, or ROL)
- Satisfy a Skills Assessment by a recognized authority in their field Be under a certain age (typically under 45) when invited to apply
- Demonstrate competent English language ability
- Meet health and character requirements (medical checks, police certificates)

SKILLED VISA SUBCLASSES

1 Skilled Independent Visa - Subclass 189

- Permanent residency visa.
- No sponsorship required — ideal for applicants with in-demand skills.
- Grants full work, study and Medicare access anywhere in Australia.
- Requires an invitation through Skill Select.

2 Skilled Nominated Visa - Subclass 190

- Permanent residency visa.
- Requires nomination by an Australian state or territory government.
- Provides extra points towards your points total for nomination.
- Must meet the minimum eligibility and points test.

3 Skilled Work Regional (Provisional) - Subclass 491

- Temporary (5-year) visa for skilled workers.
- Requires nomination by a state/territory or sponsorship by eligible family in a designated regional area.
- Visa holders can live and work in regional Australia and may qualify for permanent residency later.

POINTS TEST

Many skilled visas use Australia's points-based system. You must usually score a minimum of 65 points or higher (a higher score greatly improves your chances of invitation). Points are awarded for:

Factor	Maximum Points
Age	Up to 30
English Language	Up to 20
Skilled Employment	Up to 20
Education	Up to 20
State Nomination / Regional sponsorship	Up to 15
Professional year or regional study	bonus points

SKILLED OCCUPATION LISTS

- ✓ Medium & Long-term Strategic Skills List (MLTSSL)
- ✓ Short-term Skilled Occupation List (STSOL)
- ✓ Regional Occupation List (ROL)
- ✓ Core Skills Occupation List (CSOL)

Skill Assessment

Before you submit an EOI, you typically must undergo a skills assessment with a relevant authority (e.g., Engineers Australia, ACS for ICT, etc.). It verifies your qualifications and experience are suitable for your occupation.
